General disclaimer

From CryptoLicenseWiki, the free encyclopedia of crypto licenses · Last updated 28 November 2026

CryptoLicenseWiki provides general information only. It is not legal, tax, financial or investment advice, and it is not a recommendation to use or avoid any exchange, token or jurisdiction. Requirements, fees and capital change, and articles may not reflect the latest changes. Always confirm with the regulator concerned or a qualified professional before applying for a license.

Crypto-assets are high-risk. Their value can fall sharply and you can lose all the money you put in. A license does not protect anyone against market losses.

CryptoLicenseWiki is not a regulator and is not affiliated with any regulator. The only authoritative record of who holds a license is the regulator's own public register.
